Welcome to EUROPHRAS 2019!

The forthcoming international conference EUROPHRAS 2019 Produktive Modelle in der Phraseologie / EUROPHRAS 2019 Productive Patterns in Phraseology / EUROPHRAS 2019 Modelos productivos en Fraseología will take place in Santiago de Compostela on 24 and 25 January, 2019. The conference will focus on productive patterns in phraseology.

Corpus-based research in recent decades has identified and sought to explain a variety of phenomena on the level of discourse involving the syntactic and semantic-pragmatic regularity of lexical units. The recurrence of certain syntagmatic profiles of a word or phraseological unit in similar communicative situations reinforces the idea of the existence of patterns of usage within our mental lexicon, which are used in an almost automated way in the communicative process. Taking into account current methods for the description of linguistic patterns, the general theme of this conference seeks to address the phenomenon of existing models in the language from the following positions:

1. From a cognitive point of view, the metaphorical and metonymic models underlying phraseological units represent an interesting area of study, in both the contrastive and monolingual fields.
2. In terms of Construction Grammar, phraseological constructions, in their status as conventionalized form-meaning pairs with free slots, lend themselves especially to a comprehensive syntactic-pragmatic analysis.
3. Within the framework of Corpus Linguistics and Pragmatics, corpora and usage-based data constitute a sound basis for the pragmatic analysis of the syntagmatic patterns of the phraseological units, either within the same language or at a contrastive level.

Proposals should have an approximate length of 500 words, including bibliography and key words, and should be sent to 2019.Europhras@gmail.com (Carmen Mellado Blanco).

Presentations will last 30 minutes (20 minutes of presentation + 10 minutes for discussion). The languages of the conference are German, Spanish and English. Papers offered for subsequent publication will be subject to a process of blind peer review.
