1st Announcement

Etymological Department of the Institute of the Czech Language of the Czech Academy of Sciences will hold the international scientific conference

Etymological Symposium Brno 2017

*Etymological Research of Czech:
from the Slavonic, Indo-European and General Linguistic Perspective
Brno, 12–14 September 2017*

The contributions are expected to focus on theoretical and practical aspects of the diachronic linguistic research illustrated especially on the data from Czech in the Slavonic, Indo-European and general linguistic context. The specific concern with Czech follows from one of the outcomes of the project of the Czech Science Foundation (No. 13-17435S), which will support the conference.

Please send in an abstract (1,500 characters at most) of your contribution in Czech, Russian, English, French or German by 28 February 2017 to the above-mentioned e-mail address. Your abstract will be anonymously reviewed by a scientific committee. You will be notified by 31 March 2017 whether your contribution has been accepted for the conference.

The conference will also contain a poster session.

Languages of the contribution: all Slavonic languages, English, German, French.

Written versions of the contributions, provided they are accepted during an anonymous review process, will be published in the series Studia etymologica Brunensia. The language of the paper – accompanied by an abstract in English and by a summary in a Slavonic language – will be English, Russian, German or French.

Looking forward to your early response,
the conference organizers
